Subject:	English Language Arts
Level:	Standard Five
Strand:	Writing (Process Approach)
Topic:	Editing - Punctuation and Capitalisation

Key Point: Apply rules of Punctuation and Capitalisation to edit your written work.

Hi, boys and girls! I need your help. I am at the editing stage of the writing process. Can you find all of the errors in punctuation and capitalisation? Circle the errors. Then, help me to rewrite the passage on the lines below. Thank you so much!

Jed stared curiously at the headline, "young Computer Wiz Needed".

Mr. Kosh, Jeds father, had seen the headline before. He smiled because he knew that his son was eligible. "I cant believe it. What luck" Jed thought to himself. This ambitious young man a recent graduate in computer science, was thrilled. Was this his dream come true only time will tell.

Number of errors ☐

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

EDITING

Errors identified

Jed stared curiously at the headline, "young Computer Wiz Needed". Mr. Kosh, Jed◯s father, had seen the headline before. He smiled because he knew that his son was eligible. "I can◯t believe it. What luck◯" Jed thought to himself. This ambitious young man◯ a recent graduate in computer science, was thrilled. Was this his dream come true◯only time will tell.

Number of errors | 9

Correctly edited

Jed stared curiously at the headline, "==Y==oung Computer Wiz Needed". Mr. Kosh, Jed=='==s father, had seen the headline before. He smiled because he knew that his son was eligible. "I can=='==t believe it. What luck==!==" Jed thought to himself. This ambitious young man==,== a recent graduate in ==C==omputer ==S==cience, was thrilled. Was this his dream come true==?== ==O==nly time will tell.